Has served local ministry six years — Acquired honors as moderator and youth worker in Steuben Convention—Cooperated in constructing chimes which brought national attention to Addison church—Goes to Interlaken November 21.

It is with sincere regret that the Addison people hear of the resignation of the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold, as pastor of the Baptist Church. He announced his resignation Sunday at services and also announced that he had accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist Church at Interlaken.

The Rev. Arnold is a son of the Rev. and Mrs. George Arnold, now serving in Borden. He is a graduate of Colgate University, class of 1927. During his undergraduate days he studied in the Divinity School so that upon completion of his work for his Bachelor's degree he was ready for ordination. His ordination services were held in Cassville, N. Y., under the direction of the Oneida Baptist Association. For extra curricular activities in college he was a member of the symphony orchestra for four years, the first year being trumpet soloist with the freshmen group and in his last three years he was second violinist, traveling with the school symphony group on trips to Akron, Brooklyn and other cities.

First Assignment

His first assignment after ordination was to the Baptist Church in Himrod, N. Y., where he served from July, 1927 until March 31, 1931. It was while there that he married Miss Ernestine Rolles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rolles, September 15, 1928. One daughter, Alwynne, was born in Himrod.

The call to serve the Baptists of Addison was accepted April 1, 1931, to take the place of the Rev. Claude T. Olmstead and has been here since that time. A son Roger,

Three New Wells Boost Flow of Woodhull Field Over 74,000,000

Hand, Towsley and Tuttle wells all becoming producers in less than week—Towsley at far west end of field is biggest yet drilled near Woodhull—Other wells going down and new locations are made.

Three new wells in less than a week have boosted the open flow of gas in the big Woodhull field more than 74 million cubic feet. The three latest producers are the Hattie Hand which came in Friday, the Ralph Towsley which became a producer on Monday and the Tuttle which screamed a new production message Tuesday morning.

All three wells were being closely watched, as each hole was considerable distance from the proven part of the structure. The Hattie Hand is located about one- half mile south and a little west of the former limit of the field as made by the Moyer well. It was finished last week with an open flow of 21,000,000 cubic feet. The Hattie Hand was drilled by C. A. Goble for the Sylvania Gas Company. A line is now being laid into the field to take gas from this well.

The Towsley surprised gas officials by becoming the biggest well in the field as it roared forth Monday with an open flow of 28, 000,000 ft. of gas for the twenty four hour period. The Towsley, is located approximately a mile and a half from the Moyer, hence its result proves a large area of land southwest of Woodhull which was formerly a gamble. This means that the gas boom around the village will continue many months more as more farms are being tested for the rich deposit laid down some 4,000 feet in the earth.

The Almond Tuttle well was drilled into the pay sand Tuesday to a depth of two feet when the flow pushed the gauge up to a reading of 25,080,000 cubic feet The well was shut in with a total depth of 3,885. feet The Tuttle is located southeast of Woodhull and like the Hattie Hand and the Towsley it too opens a large new production area. The Tuttle was drilled by C. A. Goble for Sylvania.

The Charles Groves well being drilled by Joe Flanagan for Cabot was down 2,100 feet Wednesday. Cunningham's well on the Jabe Johnson farm is drilling at 1,100. The Hathway well near Woodhull rocks was shut down yesterday for a fishing job as drillers attempted to recover a lost drilling bit.

Beckers well on the Fred Sly was down to 300 feet yesterday. Stroupe is digging a cellar for a well on the Kenneth Allen farm. Southwestern Development Company has completed a cellar on the Earle Brown farm and is moving in its own rig.

Members of the Blakeslee Class of the Methodist Church are meeting today at the home of Mrs. Albert Loper. A picnic dinner at noon will be followed by a short business session and a social afternoon.

Methodists Plan New Order For Midweek Service

Mid-week services in the Methodist Church will be conducted along different lines than in the past accordin gto an announcement made by the Rev. Garland G. Lacey to the officers of church organizations Monday night. This meeting was the first meeting of the new church fiscal year and officers of most all church organizations and societies were present. A schedule of meetings for the various church groups was worked out to prevent conflict.

Needed repairs on the church and parsonage, and a proposed change in the heating system in the church were discussed but no action was taken at this time.

The new order of mid-week church service will unfold the continuous story of the Life of Christ. The pastor will discuss with the congregation various phases of Christ's life and its effect on our manner of living and its application to the daily lives of present day people.

Advertiser Motion Picture School At Avon Attracts Large Following

Attendance fills Avon Theatre for all three performances—Matinee of "Bride Wakes Up" draws from all villages in Advertiser parish—Many awards—Merchants and manufacturers cooperate.

The Addison Advertiser cooking school is over. With this motion picture cooking school of 10 reels this paper tried a new experiment and if attendance figures can be made to mean anything, the school was a success as far as Addison attendance is concerned, for the Avon Theatre was filled to capacity each of the three days of the school, with a surplus standing in the aisles Tuesday, Columbus Day. Ushers were Mrs. Ethel Smith and Mrs. Fannie Mullen.

Each day's show opened with a short talk by Maurice E. Miller, editor and publisher, who welcomed the women, thanked the cooperating merchants of Addison and vicinity and the national advertisers for their aid in making the show a success and spoke of the awarding of the prizes, many of which were donated by the Addison GLF, the Pillsbury Flour Mills, the Knox Gelatine and Lever Brothers companies and local companies. Each woman attending the show was given a cake tester from Lever Brothers, makers of Spry and recipes for Knox Gelatine dishes, banana recipes and GLF recipes. Other cooperating concerns were: Dodge Brothers motor cars, Frigidaire, Robertshaw Thermostatic heat control, Fruit Dispatch Company, Lever Brothers, Knox Gelatine, Lipton's tea, Pillsbury's flour, Sno-Sheen cake flour, samples being provided of the last named products, in addition to the other participating companies.

BEEF POSSIBILITIES

Farmers of the Southern Tier have been quite generally dissatisfied with the earnings of their farms through the past several years. Milk, upon which a majority depend for the greater part of their cash income, has not brought a price large enough to enable many of our farms, especially the small, or medium sized farms to earn a profit. Hence many farmers have been wondering how they could twist their farm management problem so as to earn a better income.

Those who are wrestling with their problem might well consider the possibility of trying out beef cattle on a small scale. The agriculture experiment station at Cornell has made some studies of the chances for success in eastern beef cattle, and has watched a few farmers who are actually raising beef cattle. The result of these studies indicates it is a decidedly worthwhile venture. To bring the matter nearer home an instance may be cited where a farmer not far from here has met with considerable success.

A man in Allegany County took the profits his farm made last year and made a gamble with beef cattle. Going into the west he bought 49 head of young stock in one of the famine districts. He also purchased one calf so poor it would almost blow away and so stunted it had to stand on its hind legs to drink out of a watering trough. He turned this western stock out on his hill farm to graze this spring and now reports that he has 46 head of fine beef stock. Four head he bought never were able to acclimate themselves to the rough, Allegany farm and they took tumbles which caused broken legs and a premature visit from the butcher.

What one man has done another can duplicate. Beef cattle are an extremely hardy race accustomed to shifting for themselves during the severe western winters. They need little in the way of housing and will convert a lot of cheap roughage into bone and muscle which sells in the market for beef after the feeder puts the steer on corn for awhile. And with the newer, better varieties of corn the agriculture colleges have developed it is now possible to raise this grain in our climate with much better yields than eastern farmers could once expect.

With meat prices now sky high it might be expected that cattle raising would be overdone in the next couple of years. As a matter of fact students of the situation point to no such thing. The combination of western famines and government curtailment of production has greatly reduced the breeding stock and high prices will induce many farmers to sell themselves short instead of putting more growth on their steers. Any eastern farmer experienced in raising dairy cattle could well afford to turn extra roughage into some beef which promises to be high in price for several years to come.

THE FARLEY SCHOOL

Nations business tells of an enterprising employer of labor which sought to cooperate with the government in finding people unlawfully receiving relief. It combed its rolls and discovered that 800 employees were getting good wages from their jobs while at the same time they were recipients of relief funds. That was only one company. No one knows how many thousands throughout the land are leeching off the U. S. Treasury, while at the same time they are employed in private industry.

If ever the leaders of the nation played politics with public funds, it has been the present administration. For it has steadfastly hung to the policy of dealing out relief through the centralized bureaus where control of spending has centered in Washington. This policy has from the beginning fostered the spirit of dishonesty and reared up among us a class of people who not only became callous to taking public charity, but, what is far worse it fostered the idea that it was "smart" to get something out of the government for nothing, whether it was needed or not. Like the Addison woman who remarked when free butter was being given out at the local relief station.

"I got two pounds of butter a week. Of course we do not use that much, but I might as well take it as long as the government is giving it away."

Keeping control of relief funds in Washington has invited unscrupulous people to get on the public rolls when they never could have succeeded in doing so if local people who knew them had been in charge. Of course it assisted in building up the great New Deal political machine which steam-rolled all opposition down in the last election. And after all that is what the politicians were after. Politicians seldom pay taxes—they let the other fellow do that.

Eight hundred employees of one company stealing from the government through the relief rolls. But what could we expect when an unprincipled fellow like Jim Farley has been pulling the strings on the political machine. Farley, the former New York boxing commissioner who used to squeeze the graft out of poor boys by making them buy new outfits from his subsidiary companies. Farley who squeezed ten dollars more out of one lad than he got from taking an awful beating.

Farleyism—the art of getting something for nothing—that is the school too many Americans have been learning from the past five years.

THE BLACK SPOT

Most people who listened to Justice Black's talk over the radio on his affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan, failed to see how he had especially raised the bottom of the hole in which he found himself. He admitted he joined the Klan of his own volition, a fact that was news to nobody because he had not denied it before. He admitted he received the card of life membership, but denied he considered it in that significance, had later thrown it away. He maintained that he was no longer a member of the Klan, had nothing to do with it.

Many who heard him gained the impression that Black had been exceedingly glad to affiliate with the Klan in the early days of political campaigning when its intolerance was looked upon as a virtue in the section of the country from which he came. But when he reached the Senate he no longer needed the help of his old friends in the Klan, so he was ready to consider himself no longer a member. When the question came up at the time his name was up for confirmation in the Senate several of his friends denied that the appointee had ever been a Kluxer. And Black remained silent while they gave him that clean bill of health. Which fact will forever place upon him the stigma of dishonesty, as far as most people are able to discern. He allowed his friends to paint him white, while all the time he knew they would be let down if the facts came out. That is dishonesty, and no one relishes the prospects of seeing a dishonest judge on the highest bench of the land.

Black claims to have washed his hands of the bigots, by renouncing his alliance with the group which signifies bigotry. Yet the opening words of his talk showed what a bigot he is, for he tried to lay the stigma of intolerance upon those who brought up the issue of his membership in the Klan. Altogether Black has utterly failed to gain friends by his address to the American people. He stands as a monument to the Roosevelt trait of impulsiveness. He will never live down the silent lie he enacted when he gained confirmation by the Senate. And his presence on the court will lower the high esteem in which that body is held by the American people. He is a black spot on the high bench.

THE POOR MUST PAY

"One of the gravest indictments of the Congress which has just adjourned is its refusal even to think about our terrible tax mess," writes John T. Flynn in a syndicated article. "This responsibility belongs to no special party — both great parties ran away from the subject. A politician is more frightened by taxation than by any other form of menace". Further on in his article, Mr. Flynn points to the ridiculous fallacy of the "soak the rich" policy of taxation. This may be good bait for uninformed voters, but as an economic possibility, to quote Mr. Flynn again it "is the saddest of all illusions!"

During the last fiscal year, Federal, state and local taxes collected in the United States amounted to $12,500,000,000. If every person who had an income of $25,000 a year or more, had been taxed to the limit — 100 per cent — collections would have reached less than $4,000,000,000, one third of the tax load. And if the government had confiscated 100 per cent of the incomes of all persons earning $5,000 a year or more—a sum which is certainly a far cry from riches—collections would have reached about $10,000,000,000, more than $2,000,000,000 less than the amount necessary to pay our extortionate tax bill.

The taxpayer who provides the bulk of tax funds in this country, whether he knows it or not, is the average small-salaried worker—the man or woman earning $20, $30 or $40 a week. Indirect taxes are the principal support of all units of government—taxes which are hidden in the cost of food, clothing, tobacco, amusements, gasoline, beauty preparations and everything we use. The Twentieth Century Fund has found that a $1,000 wage earner in New York pays $123 in taxes; a $2,000 salary worker, $238; a $5,000 a year man, $618; and a $100,000 executive, about $60,000.

We are not now paying anywhere near enough taxes to meet present government expenditures, let alone reducing our nearly $40,000,000,000 Federal debt. Only the poor man can furnish the tax money—there aren't enough rich men, if you take all they have.

"Business lumbered along with a heavy foot this week" says Business Week. That is true of all recent weeks. There have been few important setbacks in production. There has been a setback in sentiment, due to the market slump.

Lumber orders are down, and steel mills have curtailed operations. Construction is slightly under the level of a year ago.

Sidelights of Black Case Cited To Show How Politics Is Played

By MARK SULLIVAN

ARE there any developments in the Black matter? Yes. Some of them are good for a smile—if you happen to have a particularly robust sense of humor. And they are useful as illustrations of the art of politics, as practiced in the United States at this time. Here are three developments which everybody looks upon as related to the Black matter:

President Roosevelt takes lunch—very publicly—with Catholic Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago. Dispatches from newspaper men accompanying Mr. Roosevelt say the engagement was made when the furor over Justice Black's Klan connection was acute. Photographs are taken of the President and the Cardinal seated beneath a portrait of Pope Pius XI.

Justice Black appoints a law clerk. And the public announcement accompanying the appointment adds at the end, formally: "He is a member of the Jewish faith." Did it ever happen before in America that a formal announcement of any appointment by any public official included mention of the race or religion of the appointee?

Postmaster-General Farley appoints a colored lawyer to be an assistant solicitor in the Post Office Department.

Those incidents, gentle reader, are illustrations of the kind of politics which Mr. Arthur Krock, of "The New York Times," describes as "the fine art of getting away with it."

If any of the three groups—Catholics, Jews, Negroes—wants anything from the Administration—a lunch at the White House, an appointment to office, any religious or racial advantage or individual favor—now is the time to apply. But it had better act quickly. Mr. Roosevelt's frights are as ephemeral as some of his policies and convictions. They are, to use a phrase of his own, "on a twenty-four-hour basis." When he's scared, he's badly scared, but he gets over it quickly. He has an immense confidence in his ability to "change the subject," to start new currents of public emotion and make the public forget a subject inconvenient to him. One of his most frequent remarks to callers, especially to those who express alarm about some of his political maneuvers, is "I know public psychology better than you do."

It is a disturbing coincidence that Mr. Roosevelt's art of manipulating public emotion is largely identical with the art as practiced by the European dictatorships. As Dorothy Thompson puts it:

"There is a technique of the authoritarian governments which is being used free-handedly in our republic. That is to subject the people constantly to shock surprises, to follow one measure so rapidly with another that attention is diverted, and, if caught in a mistake, to brazen it out, and trust to the swiftly moving kaleidoscope of staged events to cover everything."

Let us, however, be carefully accurate about Mr. Roosevelt. He knows the totalitarian art of manipulating mass psychology as well as the dictators know it. Probably he knows it better. Considering the handicaps under which Mr. Roosevelt must operate, and which the European dictators are free from—the American free press and free radio—considering these handicaps, Mr. Roosevelt's technique is perhaps even more expert than that of the totalitarian dictators.

But let it be made clear, as respects Mr. Roosevelt's present manipulation of group psychology, that it costs Mr. Roosevelt no effort to be genial toward Catholics, Jews and Negroes. If the Administration is hurriedly being nice to them, it is not the placation of an enemy or opponent, it is rather the placation of unintended victims. If the Administration's rush of geniality toward these groups serves a current political purpose, it also is true that Mr. Roosevelt has never shown the faintest racial or religious prejudice. He did not put Mr. Black on the Supreme Court because Mr. Black was a Klansman, nor with the expectation that he would, as a justice, be intolerant toward the groups against which the Klan discriminates.

True, Mr. Roosevelt wanted an intolerant man. But he was not seeking that particular kind of intolerance. He chose Mr. Black for a special kind of intolerance, intolerance against opponents of the New Deal. He wanted a man who would crucify opponents of the New Deal. For that purpose Mr. Black is perfect—Mr. Roosevelt judged him well. Mr. Black looks upon opponents of the New Deal as traitors to the nation, public enemies. They are to be harried, persecuted. In this Mr. Black has a trait that is fundamental in the authoritarian governments. They are one-party governments. In them the party is identical with the government. All opposition parties and groups are systematically and ruthlessly stamped out. Opposition party leaders are jailed or executed; if lucky they flee into exile.

But Mr. Roosevelt, having picked a justice for one kind of intolerance, found that a bigot for one purpose is a bigot for others. Bigotry, in those who have it, is a fixed trait of mind. That is what we may all find out shortly. A program that starts out with intolerance toward political and economic groups will in time include intolerance toward religious and racial groups. That is what has taken place in Nazi Germany. That is the path America is being led into.

General consensus seems to be that there has been a halt in the previously fast march of recovery, but that no major new drop is expected. Uncertainty is blamed for the slump.

America Must Choose

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The declaration of foreign policy which the president made in Chicago is of an importance which can hardly be overrated. The move was not, I believe, impetuous. It is well known that the President and the State Department have been deeply distressed about the world situation, and that the President himself has felt that the United States should take a stand. The timing of the speech would also indicate that the President wanted to speak at an effective moment. His words were uttered while the League was still considering means of invoking the Nine Power Treaty, which bears the signature of the world's leading nations, including Japan, and pledges them to preserve the integrity of China. They were also spoken while Bruno Mussolini, son of the Duce, was arriving in Spain with fresh forces to participate in the Spanish civil war, and Italy's answer to the Franco-British note on the withdrawal of all volunteers from Spain was still unanswered.

It is known that since the rebuff from Japan some days ago, the State Department has met to consider what ought to be done, and we may take it from the President's speech, decided to play closely with the League powers. For the President speaks of "concerted" action—"a concerted effort in opposition to those violations of treaties and those ignorings of humane instincts which today are creating a state of international anarchy."

Mr. Hull's statement, published yesterday, makes this decision even clearer. It definitely aligns the United States with the viewpoint on Japan expressed in the report of the League's Advisory Committee on the situation in China and the treaty obligations of Japan. The President's speech and the Hull note leave no question that, in so far as the President and the State Department are able to commit the American people to a policy, we have been committed to collaborate in the Sino-Japanese trouble with the League, and that this collaboration suggests positive action. What the action may be is not yet indicated. The President used the word "quarantine." "When an epidemic of physical disease starts," he said, "the community joins in a quarantine of the patients, in order to protect the health of the community."

The idea of "quarantining" war was behind the Neutrality act passed by the last Congress. But there is no blinking the fact that what the President suggests and what the State Department, by its subsequent action supports, is a quite different kind of quarantine. The Neutrality act attempts to quarantine war by cutting off supplies from all nations engaged in war, regardless of who is the aggressor. What is now suggested is that the aggressors be quarantined. The Neutrality act was based on a belief in the possibility of American isolation from all conflicts troubling the rest of the world, outside of the western hemisphere. The President's words counsel the end of isolationism, in favor of collaboration in mutual responsibility, with the "ninety per cent" of the peoples of the world who want peace. If the country follows the leadership of the President and the State Department, the Neutrality act is dead. Technically, the act leaves the President a great deal of freedom, because it leaves it up to him to determine when a state of war exists. And inasmuch as the new technique of warfare is to invade the soil of other nations with the full force of arms, troops, and a completely mobilized state, without any declaration, and even without the severance of diplomatic relations, the President can find some description for what is going on, other than that it is a "state of war." Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, presented this argument in a speech some weeks ago, in which he attempted to demonstrate that the war in China isn't a war.

But technicalities are unimportant. The President has broken with the essential philosophy back of the Neutrality act. That philosophy was that it is none of our business what happens elsewhere in the world; that it is our whole aim to keep from being embroiled; that the way to do so, is to withdraw from all areas where strife is going on, immediately to refuse arms and money to belligerents, and further, to refuse to sell any goods which the President may declare to be essential war materials, except to such nations as can come and get them and pay for them in cash.

This column will weep no tears for the demise of the Neutrality act, and the point of view behind it. On this question our record is clear. We called the act, when it was passed, "the greatest Pontius Pilate act in history." We questioned its morality, and we questioned its realism. Time and again this column has asserted what is the essential premise of the President's speech: that the United States is a world power; that it is tied to the world by innumerable connections; that our prosperity, and our chance of working out a solution for our internal problems, are threatened by the convulsions which shake the rest of the world; and that a world war, or the continued spread of the present sort of international anarchy, will, whether we are drawn into it in a strictly military sense, or not, disrupt our economy, and, in all probability, bring down the whole social order, as it is now constituted. We have said that if the United States really makes up her mind to withdraw from the world, then we should be logical, and do what Japan did in the generations before Perry—make a self-contained, autarchial economy, with all the regimentation that that involves, and start doing it quickly. To continue to be tied to the world, as we are tied, involves the acceptance of responsibility for every effort to make that world the kind of place in which we can continue to exist with a degree of safety. And the acceptance of responsibility involves risk. There is no blinking that fact, either.

America has got to decide, not between risk and security—there is no security anywhere in the world today. We have got to decide between risks, whether it is a greater risk to sit by and watch the flood rise, on the gamble that it may never reach us—although it reaches us, visibly, already—or the risk of being drowned, while trying, with others, to build a levee. Yesterday's dykes were, in all conscience, weak enough. They were treaties, conventions, codes of behavior, diplomatic procedures. They didn't prevent all wars in the past. They did, however, give opportunity for delay, for negotiation. They did, time and again, stall off wars. They did prevent some of the atrocities of present-day hostilities. Even the World War never became the kind of totalitarian warfare which is now emerging on the horizon.

And we know, still, very little about how to build the kind of dykes that are needed, nor is there agreement among the engineers. What we approach is only an agreement in will — an agreement amongst what are still the strongest nations on earth that war is no longer allowable. An agreement that some means must be found to make it more costly to wage war than not to. For it is not true that no nation wants to go to war. It is true that no nation wants to undertake a war which it is certain to lose, either because it will face an overwhelming show of force, or because it will be cut off, immediately, from necessary supplies. It is no longer true that it takes two to make a war. Or rather, it takes two to make a war, but only one to make a conquest.

GOP Supreme Court Choice

The Advertiser presents herewith a brief sketch of the career of Nathan D. Lapham, Geneva Attorney who was unanimously chosen at the recent Republican Judicial Convention as the party's candidate for Supreme Court Justice in the November 2 election.

Mr. Lapham was born at Macedon, a son of the late DeWitt C. and Amelia J. (Finley) Lapham. Mr. Lapham is married, a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Geneva, a Mason and an Elk.

After being graduated from Macedon Academy, he entered Cornell University and in 1895 received a degree in law. During the same year he was admitted to the bar of the State of New York, beginning the practice of his profession at Lyons, with the Hon. Clyde W. Knapp, now a justice of the Supreme Court, under the firm name of Knapp & Lapham. This co-partnership continued two years. In addition to engaging in the general practice of law, Mr. Lapham served as clerk of the Board of Supervisors of Wayne County for two years.

In 1904 Mr. Lapham went to Geneva, where he has since been engaged in the practice of his profession. Throughout his entire career at the bar, he has been an active trial lawyer for 15 years associated with William S. McGreevy, of Geneva, under the firm name of Lapham & McGreevy. In 1921 James M. He has been active in amending the substantive and procedural criminal law of the state to meet modern conditions.

In 1935 Governor Lehman appointed Mr. Lapham a member of the Crime Commission, later designating him as vice-chairman of the Round Table on Prosecution and the Courts under presiding Justice Edward Lazansky of the Second Department. For upwards of fifteen years Mr. Lapham was closely associated with the late Justice Robert F. Thompson in the promotion of Boy Scouting, being one of the founders of the Finger Lakes Council, Boy Scouts of America, which organization he served as president, and, like Justice Thompson, was awarded the Silver Beaver "for distinguished service to boyhood".

F. F. A. CHAPTER CHATTER

The members of the Future Farmers of America wish to express their appreciation to the the editor and staff of the Addison Advertiser for the space used by the members each week.

Through the medium of this column the F. F. A. boys hope to relate each week all the activities of their chapter. They believe that the training afforded in the writing of these news articles will be helpful in their other high school subjects.

We regard the using of this column a privilege and we will try to make it an interesting worthwhile service column.

Many times each month the "Ag" department is called upon for information regarding some farm problem by some member of the community, other than those who have a boy taking agriculture.

We welcome these inquiries and if we cannot answer the question we can usually find the answer or will tell the person inquiring we do not know.

Any person in the community who wishes such information is at liberty to make use of the local agriculture department.

In our farm shop this past week we have changed the guards on the milk tester, jig saw, sander and drill press to meet the requirements of the state department.

The old guards were made from mesh wire and the new guards are made from sheet iron. They cover belts, pulleys, and other devices that might injure anyone.

The Ag boys have constructed the guards which saved the school a considerable sum of money, as they are very expensive ti buy ready made.

While some members were working on these guards others were filing saws, sharpening and adjusting plane irons, splicing rope and learning to tie different kinds of knots. This is the first shop work of the year. Other sessions will be held during the winter and spring months.

Most of the F. F. A. boys have completed their individual milk test on each cow in their herd for the first month of school.

This year we have on test about four hundred cows. These cows are tested once a month. The sample of milk is taken, half at night and half in the morning. The milk is weighed before the sample is taken and the weight is recorded. The milk is then brought to school where it is tested by the Babcock method.

The objectives in testing these cows are two-fold. The first is that the boy and his father will know the amount of butter fat and milk that each cow in the herd produces. And thus are able to build up a higher producing herd by raising calves from their best producing animals.

The second is to teach the boys the necessity of accuracy. A little mistake in either taking or testing the sample will give every inaccurate tests hence the boys soon learn in order for the test to mean anything, the testing must be done accurately.

Mr. Townsend a member of the Dairymens League Cooperative Association was a caller at the Addison High School Agriculture Dept. Thursday night.

He was here distributing material for an essay contest which is sponsored by this Cooperative Association.

Money has been appropriated for this contest. It is hoped that some local members will take part.

—o—

There was an "Ag" Teachers Group meeting last night at Hammondsport.

This meeting was held for the purpose of discussing the problems of young men out of school and on farms.

These meetings are held once a month for these young men. The purpose is to keep them interested in school and farming.

Many problems beset the young man just starting in farming and through these meetings many of the answers can be secured. The exchange of ideas among young farmers is well worthwhile.

The F. F. A. boys have organized an orchestra again this year. There are to be several boys participating, playing many different instruments. Eldon Converse who has charge of organizing the orchestra plays a harmonica and guitar. The other guitar players are George Bouton, Burdette Miles, and Harold Wheaton. Lawrence Howland will also play a harmonica with John Cole playing traps. The violin and piano players have not yet been decided. The Hill Billy orchestra will be one of the best this chapter has ever had.

It will play at Grange programs Father and Son Banquet and various other meetings.

A meeting of the F. F. A. members was called last Thursday noon Ways and Means of raising money to pay a small bill and make a deposit in our treasury was discussed. A committee of three was appointed to levy a small fine for members who skip meetings without reason.

—o—

There was an F. F. A. meeting Wednesday noon to arrange definite plans for an F. F. A. weiner roast. We hope to hold the roast in conjunction with an evening meeting. At this meeting it is hoped to formulate a rather definite program for the ensuing year. We should have an active year and rate high in the chapter activity contest.

Welfare Commissioner Points Out Changes in Relief for Blind

E. Ray Hardenbrook, Commissioner of Public Welfare, has called attention to the change in administration of blind relief.

Prior to the enactment of the National Security Act, the State of New York provided relief to the blind on the basis of need evident at the time of the grant. The grants were made by the Board of Supervisors and the checks were issued by the County Treasurer and charged to the town in which the person had a settlement.

The new law effective July 1, 1937 established regulations regarding the granting of relief to the blind. This law specified the degree of blindness necessary to be eligible for aid under this Act. All cases must be reinvestigated as to the point of eligibility set up by the State and Federal Government.

The requirements are very similar to those in effect and governing the granting of Old Age assistance. Applications can be made to the Commissioner of Public Welfare at Bath. Investigations will be made at the person's home. The regulations require—"has not sufficient income or other resources to provide a reasonable subsistence and has no children or other person able to support him and and responsible under the provisions of this chapter for his support"—

The new provisions of law—"require that the old age assistance or/and blind district be given a claim on such property and that such insurance be secured, in such a manner as to insure payment of the cost of burial and the repayment to the district of assistance granted to such person."

The procedure does not require that a complete assignment of property be made to the County, but that the County, State and Federal Government will be reimbursed from such property to the full extent of relief given. The balance and residue, of any, will be distributed to the heirs as directed by the applicant during his lifetime. This distribution is made by the Surrogate.

All assignments of property and insurance, all expenditures and all deposits of reinbursement and other matters are audited by the County, State and Federal Auditors at frequent intervals.

This information is furnished as we have had a number of requests as to procedure both from blind persons and applicants for old age assistance.

DON'T BE FOOLED

BY DEMOCRATIC CLAIMS

Designed to Make You Believe a Change in the Office of Commissioner of Public Welfare Would be a Move Towards Economy in Steuben County.

THE EXACT CONTRARY IS TRUE!

Democratic control of the office of Commissioner of Public Welfare would bring the same kind of economy we have been getting with Democratic control of the state capital at Albany and the national capital at Washington. The increase in cost of the office of Commissioner of Public Welfare is entirely attributable to mandatory laws coming out of Albany. WILL A STATE ADMINISTRATION WHICH FORCES THE COUNTY INTO SUCH EXTRAVAGANCES AS THE NEW JAIL ECONOMIZE ONE PENNY'S WORTH?

E. RAY HARDENBROOK is the most efficient Commissioner of Public Welfare in the State of New York. Do not let the Democratic machine fool you into voting Hardenbrook out of office. ONCE LET THE DEMOCRATIC STATE MACHINE GET CONTROL OF WELFARE IN UPSTATE NEW YORK, AND YOU WOULD SOON SEE EVERY COUNTY UNDER THE CONTROL OF FARLEYISM!

KEEP TAMMANY FINGERS OUT OF THIS COUNTY

Ask yourself this question: "How much economy have I seen in Albany or Washington under Roosevelt-Lehman Rule?" REMEMBER we have HEARD lots of TALK about ECONOMY from the Democrats, but SEEN not a jot nor tittle of it.

Keep an efficient man who KNOWS his job in the office of Commissioner of Public Welfare by re-electing

Advertising Club Hears Talks On Newspapers and Health

Miss Bessie Hille, returned Presbyterian missionary to China will be the speaker at the Ladies' Night program of the Addison Advertising Club October 27. She was 20 years in China during the great growth of industrial and national tendencies.

Dr. William E. Barron was in charge of the luncheon meeting held in the Presbyterian Church parlors Wednesday noon.

H gave a short talk on a question of vital importance to him and he considered it a vital question for Americans to consider. This question is the denial of a man in this community to do business in this community, by the state, because others are in the same business. He said:

There were 38 present at the dinner which was served by members of the Tuxis Club. President Charles Crane said no complaints had been received for action by the club. Ray S. Brown brought up the matter of garbage collection for Addison and humorously spoke of it as a club project in that the garbage could be collected and the club buy pigs to which to feed the garbage and the club use the funds collected from the sale of the pigs for the club treasury.

L. J. Haynes, club member, was congratulated on his recent marriage. A resolution was introduced by M. G. Hubbs relative to Fred Clark, former president, who is ill. Dr. A. G. Stiker acted as secretary-treasurer in the absence of R. B. Dykins. Songs were led by the Rev. John V. Axtell with the Rev. Kenneth Arnold as accompanist.

This Week In Sports

Cornell's bid for national football honors seems to be more in earnest this season than in the past several seasons. And with this in mind the Big Red team of Carl Snavely seems to be the best bet in the Syracuse-Cornell contest this coming Saturday. With the triple threat outfit of Baker, Holland and Peck, Cornell is way out in front in 1937.

Of course you all know the World Series is over and the baseball players have been paid off and are now enroute to the woods or their homes for the winter. And as usual each season there is an argument as to why the winners won and why the losers lost, all such opinions, of course being rendered by the grandstand and radio audience coaches.

Football games to watch this Saturday are: Alfred at Buffalo, Amherst at Rochester, Boston University vs Clarkson at Watertown, Fordham vs Pittsburgh at the Polo Grounds, Lafayette vs Georgetown at Washington, Oberlin vs Hamilton at clinton, Hobart vs Trinity at Hartford, Lehigh vs Penn State at State College, Michigan vs Minnesota at Ann Arbor, Navy vs Harvard at Baltimore, Niagara vs St. Bonaventure at Niagara, Notre Dame vs Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh, Princeton vs Chicago at Chicago, St. Lawrence vs Cortland at Canton and Yale vs Army at New Haven.

The first home game for the Addison Knights football squad will be Friday afternoon when Jasper plays here at 3:30 o'clock. The locals have one win and one loss this season and held the league-leading Avoca squad to 12 points last week. Not bad for a first year team.

Bill McKechnie, who has been managing the Boston Bees, will become pilot of the Cincinnati Reds at a salary believed to be about $25,000 annually. He has a two-year contract. The change was predicted here recently.

Hubbell's victory Saturday was sure given the hearty approval of both National and American League fans. Carl is well liked by all baseball followers. His manner of going about his job appeals to us.

Jury Completed in Van Cise Murder Trial

Five years ago William and Frank Van Cise were found dead of bullet wounds in their farmhouse on the Beeman Hollow road east of this village. For the second time the alleged murderers of the Van Cise brothers are now on trial in Canandaigua. The first trial in this county brought a hung jury for no agreement could be reached.

Those on trial for the murder are. Bartolo Guccia, Endicott; James Ross, Corning and Anthony Mistretta, Elmira. They sit impassively in the court room while the jury is being drawn. Eleven jurors were drawn yesterday. Testimony is expected to start today (Thursday).

The dogs were bred at the Majabar Kennels, Addison. Majabar Moonshine won three first places in the novice class last spring at the Buffalo Niagara Falls and Rochester dog shows. Recently he won title of best breed at the Angelica show sponsored by the Southern Tier Kennel Club. Majabar was sired by the International Ch. Drinkmoor Moonshine.

Homebrew's Premier won the novice class for females at the same three shows in the spring and won special honors at the Syracuse State Fair dog show. Homebrew's Premier was sired by the International Ch. Drinkmoor Homebrew.

The bulldog is one of the oldest of British breeds. It probably originated from a larger breed. The bulldog was originally developed for bull baiting (fighting bulls), a popular sport in England for 700 years until outlawed in 1835.

A protuding lower jaw and short muzzle were developed to enable the dog to breathe the while holding the nose of the bull.

The bulldog is a fearless and powerful fighter, but is slow to anger and one of the friendliest of dogs. The English bull weighs from 40 to 60 pounds, has a wide head, formidable shoulders and short legs. The color varies from red-brindle to white, fawn, fallow pie-bald: Bull terriers, Boston terriers and French bulldogs were developed from bulldogs.

was born to the Rev. and Mrs. Arnold since their arrival in Addison.

He has accomplished many things since he came here. And he also has acquired several honors for the church and for himself. During his tenure here he has attended three Northern Baptist conventions held in Washington, Rochester and Philadelphia.

Moderator

During this time he has also been moderator of the Steuben Area Baptist convention and has served as secretary, treasurer and president of the Ministers' Association of the Corning District. The Rev. Arnold has also served as chairman of the ordination committee for the Steuben Convention.

At the present time he is serving as adult advisor for the Baptist youth organizations of Steuben County. At a meeting of that group in Gibson Monday night, he was praised for his work among young people. The Baptist Young People's Union has been formed since he came to Addison. In the same period the Sunday school classes have increased in attendance.

The Rev. Arnold has been active in musical and community affairs here. At the present time he is a member of the Advertising Club of Addison and has often acted as song leader for that group. In music circles he is well known here for his work on the electric organ and with the violin and trumpet.

Chimes Bring Fame

One of the outstanding things of his administration here, one which brought national prominence to the local church, to him and to Addison, was the making of the brake drum chimes. These were made by the Rev. Arnold in cooperation with his father-in-law, William Rolles, to fill a long-felt want for chimes in the Baptist Church. They were first played Easter Sunday, April 21, 1935. A national radio chain brought their tone to the national Sunday night listening audience. As a result many communications have been received by the Rev. Arnold relative to these chimes and contributions for the Addison church.

Other improvements made to the local church and parsonage under his administration have been the building of a rest room in the church, the remodeling of the rear of the parsonage in 1931, the building of a garage in 1931, roof on the church and dedication of the new electric organ both in 1936.

The Rev. Arnold will leave here November 15, 1937 and will begin his duties as pastor in Interlaken November 21, 1937.

The Rev. Arnold has the record of remaining in the Addison Baptist Church longer than any previous minister since the inception of the church here in 1868.

Girl Scout Drive for Funds to be Continued

Girl Scout leaders are conducting a drive for funds in Addison to carry on the program of activities for the coming year. There is no community chest in Addison, as in other communities for financing youth and other activities, hence the need to ask the public for this aid. The program includes camping, work in art and crafts, lessons in citizenship and character building, teaching of the home arts and the use of leisure time.

The building for meetings is donated but there are other expenses of maintaining the program which keeps 22 girls and six leaders active in Addison. Scout training is the training of future citizens.

Mrs. Lacey Delegate To Missionary Meet

Mrs. Garland G. Lacey is in Syracuse attending sessions of the State Methodist Missionary groups. Sessions are being held from Tuesday through Friday. Mrs. Lacey is a delegate from the Hornell District of the Genesee Conference at this convention. She will return Friday night in time for choir rehearsal.

Girl Scout Leaders Taking Training Courses

Four Girl Scout leaders of Addison have enrolled in the Leadership Training Course being conducted for Girl Scout leaders of Corning and Painted Post. The local women have been welcomed into the course by the Scouting leaders of those communities who sponsor the school under the auspices of the National Girl Scout headquarters.

The work is a 16-hour course of study conducted two hours each Monday and Wednesday evening for four weeks in Girl Scout headquarters in Corning. Those from Addison who are attending are: Mrs. Bernard Wilson and Miss Jeannette Dykins, leaders and Mrs. Irving R. Gladstone, commissioner and Mrs. Francis Hill, treasurer of the local committee.

Better cakes with less worry and work—that's the demand of home makers everywhere today. They want to produce a cake which will win the approval of every member of the family and add to their laurels as a cake baker among their friends.

Not long ago, a woman wrote a friendly note to Mary Ellis Ames, Director of Pillsbury's Cooking Service.

"I recently 'discovered' Pillsbury's Sno Sheen Cake Flour," her letter read. "For years I was proud of the fact that I was acknowledged as a baker of good cakes. Then, one day a friend told me of Sno Sheen and the extra-fine cakes she had baked with it. I tried it—and I'll never be without it again."

Fine cakes aren't the exception—they're the rule—with a fine flour such as Pillsbury's Sno Sheen Cake Flour, which is used in the Motion Picture Cooking School.

The reason for this is simple. The millers realized that women wanted a fine cake flour. The laboratory technicians went to work. It was found that a blend of certain soft wheats, milled to velvety fineness, was the best for the baking of fine cakes. So each year Pillsbury purchases the best soft wheats available, puts the experience of many years of research into the production of a super-fine flour, and Sno Sheen is the result.

Steuben Welfare Expenses Down Not Up, Says Steuben Com.

Bath, Oct. 11 — Steuben County voters have been pondering some rather interesting statements made by rival candidates for the office of County Welfare Commissioner.

John McIntire, the Democratic nominee, says he is the candidate of the "Independent Citizens Committee" the names of the members of which have never been published that voters may know whom he actually represents and their business affiliations.

Mr. Hardenbrook's work has been commended by H. H. Lehman, the Democratic Governor of the state.

Mr. McIntire says he will curtail the agencies approved by Governor Lehman although he cannot change any of them because they are covered by laws passed by members of Mr. McIntire's party and expenditures are fixed.

Mr. Hardenbrook says that under his administration expenses of the County Home and County Farm have been reduced from $44,215.82 to $26,650.83, according to the reports certified by auditors.

Mr. McIntire says these expenses have been increased but offers nothing to justify his statement.

Mr. Hardenbrook seeks re-election because the welfare office now requires a business expert so diversified have been the requirements.

Mr. McIntire makes all his statements in the name of the so-called "Independent Citizens Committee".

HEAT-CONTROLLED OVENS HELP OFFSET RISING FOOD COSTS

Make Oven Cannery Easier, Surer

"Yes ma'm" says your favorite butcher a little sadly, "beef's gone up another penny today." "Yes ma'm," he agrees sympathetically, "it went up last week, too." Butchers and grocers and buyers all agree that the trend of the times is inclined to be onward for foods. But to every problem there is usually a solution, provided we look around us. And to solve the problem of mounting food costs, we can look (of all places) to the manufacturers of the new gas ranges. These manufacturers have made such marvelous improvements in ovens that all sorts of new flavors are coaxed from meats. And therein lies one happy solution to the problem of rising costs.

New Flavors From Low-Cost Meats

Time was that the cheaper meats met with a sad reception at mealtime and mother was accused of holding out on a food-loving family. But the blame really belonged to the old fashioned ranges of the day.

Modern ovens are so constructed that new and delicious flavors are to be found in inexpensive meats.

The modern method of automatic heat control maintains an even, unvaried temperature which gives every woman a wizardry at bringing out hidden flavors. The whole secret, of course, lies in the fact that oven-heat-control helps you to cook to absolute perfection, and when a food is perfectly cooked, its flavors have had a chance to show themselves.

Consequently lower-cost cuts of beef and shoulder roasts can be made into the most tempting dishes you have ever eaten. And what a difference you will notice in the health of your pocketbook.

Controlled Shrinkage Saves Money, Too

Of course, you know how heat control works in the modern ovens, but just in case—here's a quick explanation:

We'll say that the modern recipe you have calls for an oven heat of 350° for one hour. With heat control, you just set the dial to 350° and light the oven burner. Now—when the heat inside the oven reaches 350°, the oven burner automatically "cuts down" as they call it, and burns only enough gas to keep that 350° at a steady mark.

Even that remarkable accuracy has been improved upon.

Just recently Robertshaw, makers of oven-heat-controls, has added what's called a "Thermal Eye." This is a window set in the face of the control panel and the instant the oven reaches the temperature dialed, a red signal jumps into view.

So nowadays women have not only a mechanical hand that "levels off" her heat when the foods go in the oven, but she also has a mechanical signal that tells her when to put those foods in.

Such complete control over the oven temperature has far-reaching advantages, such as control over meat shrinkage. How many times have you placed a big luscious roast in the oven and brought it out considerably smaller in size? That's shrinkage, a great waster of meat. It is caused by roasting at too high a temperature. Modern Home Economists, in exhaustive tests have demonstrated that this shrinkage can be reduced to a great degree by roasting meats at low temperatures over long periods of time. This can easily be done in ovens equipped with Robertshaw oven heat control. Roasts cooked this low-temperature way are tender and palatable—and important, too, this method reduces shrinkage to such an extent that many extra servings can be made that were heretofore wasted, making your roasts go farther and keeping your meat bills under better control.

New Accuracy Makes Canning Easier

Perfect control over oven operation has made oven canning the accepted modern way to put up foods. The method is much more convenient than the old way and the results give better taste and better appearance.

Authorities recommend oven temperatures around 250°, and the modern recipe books tell how long each fruit or vegetable should stay in. After preparing the foods and the jars, it is only necessary to fill the jars to within one inch of top; place them directly on the oven racks; regulate the heat according to the recipes; then just shut the oven door on all your old canning troubles.

Oven canning cuts food costs too, and this economy, together with the new economy made possible with lower-cost meats combine to make the purchase of a modern gas range a worthwhile investment which will pay steady dividends in food-savings.

COMPLEXION CONSCIOUS? "USE MAKE-UP," HOLLYWOOD ADVISES, "BUT"....

Here's Hollywood's Inside Story on How to Keep Skin Smooth

Ever wonder what caused that tiny little blemish, those enlarged pores, that dull, lifeless look your mirror shows? Did you ever think it might be your own fault that your skin isn't as lovely as you'd like it to be?

It's true that if you don't remove cosmetics thoroughly, if you let hidden traces of stale rouge and powder, dust and dirt remain in your pores to choke them—you may be, all unconsciously, spoiling your own looks.

A Simple Beauty Hint

You don't find screen stars taking such chances with their skin. Smooth skin's too important! The picture at right shows Joan Blondell, the charming Warner Brothers star, using Hollywood's favorite beauty care—soap and water. It's a special soap, of course. The soap 9 out of 10 lovely screen stars use to keep skin flawless. And Joan Blondell tells you why you ought to use it:

"Use rouge and powder all you like. I do. But be sure to remove them thoroughly with Lux Toilet Soap," this lovely star says. "It's foolish to take chances with Cosmetic Skin—dullness, tiny blemishes, enlarged pores. Lux Toilet Soap has an ACTIVE lather that prevents choked pores, keeps skin smooth and soft. I always use it!"

Lucky the girl who knows that this simple beauty care, followed regularly, really works! This beauty soap is priced to fit any woman's budget. And yet she can depend on

Where's the girl who won't want to try a beauty bath that's luxurious, but inexpensive? Hollywood has found it. Screen stars use for their beauty bath the same soap that guards their priceless complexions.

You'll find, as Hollywood does, that Lux Toilet Soap's ACTIVE lather removes perspiration, dust and dirt from the pores, keeps skin sweet. In this way it makes you sure of daintiness—and daintiness pays!

Avoca Outplays AHS at Football

Avoca High School's touch football team outplayed the Addison Knights Friday afternoon at Avoca to win 12 to 0. The victors are champions in the league and the locals are making their first season's effort in touch football. The experience of the winners told in the pinches. In addition the locals had a lighter line than the Avocans which could not stop the heavier winners.

Hughes and Monroy scored the points for the winners, the first coming on a pass over the line and the second being made after a 20-yard pass and 20-yard run.

The locals tried several passes which failed to click for long distances.

Statistics on the game show that Avoca scored 12 first downs to eight for Addison, seven passes were tried and five clicked for Avoca while the Addisonites tried eight and four short passes were caught, each team tried three punts with the winners scoring 20 yards on each and Addison scoring 21. Addison was penalized 20 yards, five for off side and 15 for talking back to the referee and Avoca was penalized five yards for off side and five for talking back.

Hardenbrook is Tendered Dinner

Bath—Oct. 11—Appreciation of E. Ray Hardenbrook's self-sacrificing work in behalf of Steuben County nurses was demonstrated when members of the profession tendered him a banquet in the Hotel Wagner here, paid tribute to his ability as a legislative factor and presented him a pleasing gift. Mr. Hardenbrook and his wife are both trained nurses and their interest in the members of their profession is unceasing although neither is now engaged in that work.

During the last session of the Legislature a bill was introduced that if passed would have reduced nurses in Steuben and other counties to the status of servant girls due to their having been graduated from hospitals that did not meet certain arbitrary requirements as to the number of beds, etc. The nurses affected appealed to Mr. Hardenbrook to lead their fight against the bill.

Enlisting the support of Steuben's representatives in the Legislature Mr. Hardenbrook caused a wave of public sentiment against the manifest unfairness of the bill and then delivered a bitter denunciation for its far-reaching requirements before a legislative committee that had previously heard the eloquent appeal of those who, for self reason, desired to see the measure become a law. The bill was killed.

Mr. Hardenbrook, Steuben's widely known commissioner of welfare, was given full credit throughout the state for protecting the rights of young women, competent and fully trained nurses, who came close to being eliminated from their chosen profession. At the tribute banquet representatives of every hospital in the county as well as private duty nurses expressed the high regard in which they hold Mr. Hardenbrook and praised his outstanding leadership.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

I want to thank the merchants who cooperated in making our cooking school a success. It could not have been made possible had it not been for them. And it is up to us to prove the school will do them good and the best way we can do this is by asking you to patronize the merchants and concerns who aided in promoting the school. Women who attended will find the list of the cooperating companies on their programs. Others will find the list in the paper of last week.

It is with regret that the Rambler learns of the going away of the Rev. Kenneth E. Arnold of the Baptist Church. He is going to advanced fields. He is young and has much before him and while I hate to see him go, I feel he is starting on a ladder which will lead him far and many changes will come on his route to the top. And may his friends in his new charge be as many and love him as well as they do here. Some of his parishioners left church with heavy hearts Sunday after he read his resignation.

This is Addison's third loss in the ministry in the past few months, the first being the Rev. J. Edward McKay of St. Catherine's who was sent to Elmira in June, the Rev. Thomas A. How many of you have ever written a letter to a radio sponsor in thanking him for the entertainment he provides? Often times you may not like the product but a word of appreciation to the sponsor or artist would not be amiss. And the same holds true when someone writes something good you like. The only time a writer or artist hears anything is when he makes a mistake or does something wrong. That seems hardly fair.

Last week we reported in this paper some of the activities of the newly formed Women's Civic Society. One of the projects they are undertaking is a community center. It seems to the Rambler that the Grammar School is an ideal place. It is well built, has a large and spacious lawn, plenty of room, is easily heated and is out of the heavy traffic zone. And if properly cared for has good sanitary facilities.

Friday will be Coach Bill Miller's first opportunity to appear before the public in Addison with one of his teams. I'm sure the public expects a lot from him during the coming year and on the other hand, he has a right to expect something from the public and so have the kids playing for him. That something is the support of the parents and people for the teams of AHS. Just providing the facilities for the exercise is not doing all one's part. And this holds true for the students in school too, the team needs their support.

The streets are still in a dirty condition, especially Main street and it would not be a bad idea for the village fathers to spend some of the money on hand to clean it, for when the fall winds begin to blow this is going to be a dirty place.

The boycott of some foreign products has already started in this vicinity. A gentleman walked into a local store Monday morning and asked for a product. He was given the article and began examining it. He saw a label "Made in Germany" and said, "No made in Japan or Germany articles for me." And he would not buy it either.

The cooking school is over. I hope many of the women who attended will call upon their local merchants and tell them of the recipes they saw advertised in the school and buy the merchandise necessary from the merchants who advertised in our Cooking School edition. The Mrs. made that banana milk shake Monday night and it sure is a smooth drink. Later I had some of those banana scallops and they went down pretty easy too.

One of our readers objected to our placing him at an old home day celebration recently when he was in another village at a religious service. I'm sure the writer of the original item meant no harm and did not deliberately make a misstatement. The aim of news is accuracy. However, opinions expressed here are the writer's and not necessarily news, as has been construed by some readers, who have taken the trouble to define accuracy for us. Items appearing elsewhere than in the editorial column are news and should be accurate. But to get back to my opening, mistakes do creep into news items and many an editor has grayed over night at some misprint which appeared and which could not be called back when the papers were on the street.

Cornell and Syracuse Furnish Headline Football Game Saturday

The season's greatest football classic in western New York will be played Saturday when Cornell University and Syracuse clash in the crescent at Ithaca. Fans who are ardent supporters of one or the other of these great schools will probably fill the big stadium before the opening kick-off for the game is supposed to decide the mythical championship of central New York.

Betting odds on the game are said to favor Cornell by as wide margins as six to one, but supporters of the Orange stoutly defend their favorites and maintain Cornell is in for a big surprise. Syracuse is chuck full of confidence after a smashing victory over St. Lawrence and an earlier win from Clarkson, bbut the eleven has yet to show its wares against a major foe. The new coach Ossie Solem has been drilling his charges with the Minnesota system of play and Syracuse promises to bring a smashing line into action Saturday to oppose the devastating attack of the Cornell forwards.

Cornell has responded to Carl Snavely's coaching with three wins this season, all against major foes and many followers of the game are already calling them one of the two best teams in the east. It is undoubtedly one of the stoutest fighting elevens ever to represent Cornell, for in each of the three games the team has come from behind to administer a decisive win with plays that have been packed with drama. Last Saturday Peck and Baker, two backfield sensations of the Big Red pulled off a play Snavely called the greatest he had ever seen on any field when they collectively carried the ball 88 yards for a touchdown which decided the game. In that play Peck took the ball on his twelve behind interference and he raced to the mid-field stripe where he was bottled by two Princeton runners. But at a call from Baker he tossed a lateral into the latter's hands and the sensational sophomore raced on to the goal.

With a team on the field which can pull unrehearsed plays like that the crowd Saturday can be sure of an afternoon full of thrills however the game may result. In their first games both elevens have depended largely on straight football and passes to carry them to victory, but both coaches have carried on secret practice this week and some new surprise plays will likely come out of their bags of tricks Saturday.

MOUNTAIN OF DISHES WASHED EVERY YEAR BY AVERAGE HOUSEWIFE

IF ALL the dishes, pots and pans that the average housewife washes during the year were piled in a heap they would make a mountain several hundred feet high. This tremendous task is not only a burdensome duty, but many beauty experts claim that it is the cause of most red, rough and old-looking hands.

As a result of widespread investigation it was discovered that housewives desire a soap that makes suds energetic enough to get rid of every trace of grease in double-quick time, yet gentle enough to keep hands smooth, soft and white. Millions of women have discovered that the New improved Rinso combines these two important qualities. It gives richer, livelier suds that get dishes, pots and pans sparkling clean. And it is as kind as ever to the hands.

Star Scared by Wrestler's Face

Bull Montana, one-time "Horror Man of Wrestlers", will be more careful the next time he drops in on a darkened sound stage. An actor since he retired from the mat sport, Montana plays himself in "Big City", Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture at the Fox Theatre Saturday, Sunday and Monday. While looking for his company, he walked on "The Bride Wore Red" set. Joan Crawford was quietly studying her script in a dimly lighted corner when Montana stuck his head through a door. Miss Crawford said, "Oh!" Montana turned and made a hasty exit.

When Miss Crawford described the intruder to Robert Young, the actor smiled. "Only two men in the world would fit that description" Young said, "Frankenstein and Bull Montana."

Judge Edwin C. Smith Makes Surprising Offer to Local Men

Farmers living near his place are given the opportunity to buy male calves of fine breeding at low prices—Hopes to establish an Ayrshire center for cattle of that breed in the Addison community.

Edwin C. Smith, former Supreme Court justice in this district has made an announcement through the advertising columns of this paper which is of interest and importance to the entire community. Judge Smith is offering to sell male offspring of his fine herd in Addison at extremely nominal prices for the purpose of establishing an Ayrshire center around Addison.

Mr. Smith stated that he regards the Southern Tier in which this town is located as an ideal Ayrshire country, and he hopes that by offering fellow farmers the opportunity to buy male calves from his excellent herd local interest will be aroused in this breed of milk cattle.

"This is a natural Ayrshire country" said Judge Smith. "You can keep three Ayrshires on these hills where only two Holsteins could exist. Ayrshires will pick their living in woods and limited pasture areas where most breeds of cattle would starve to death.

"I do not know of anything which could help this community more than to have it develop into a famous center for Ayrshire cows. If Addison became known for excellent cows of that breed buyers would turn to our section when they wanted high class stock and we could sell our surplus togreat advantage. If one or two men in a locality specialize in a breed it is hard to attract buyers to them, but if an entire section becomes noted as the home of Ayrshire cows buyers will come from great distances to choose a cow here, a couple of cows there and so on until they have selected a carload. Because they can get what they want without traveling from one county to another they will pay fancy prices for the animals they take. It would make a vast difference to the farmers of this community if they could sell all their surplus cows at fancy prices."

Judge Smith is speaking facts with which he is familiar when he tells of the advantage of selling good stock in carload lots. At the last Steuben County Fair his Ayrshires walked away with practically every prize in sight and a couple of weeks later a buyer in the east who learned of this excellent herd came to purchase some stock. Because he had what the buyer wanted Judge Smith was able to sell a carload of Ayrshires at fancy prices, and the buyer was delighted to be able to get what he wanted.

In offering offspring from his herd to local farmers, Judge Smith is giving them the opportunity to start Ayrshire herds with some of the most noted lines of that breed in the country.
